The wide colonial hall, running entirely through the house, was lighted in true colonial fashion by rows of wax candles set in the windowsills and on the mantels, while autumn leaves and bright colored Japanese lanterns, hung from the arches of the doorway, lent a touch of gaiety to the scene. A buffet supper was served at midnight.

THE POST OFFICE G. A. R. TO CELEBRATE

J. B. Royce, Charter Member,
Guest of Honor At Fiftieth Anniversary.

With an empty sleeve as mute testimony to his service to his country, James B. Royce, of 628 Eighteenth street northwest, will be the guest of honor at the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of John A. Rawlins Post No. 1, Department of the Potomac, G. A. R., to be held tonight at G. A. R. Hall.

One of the two surviving charter members of John A. Rawlins Post, and the only one living in the city at the present time, Mr. Royce has continued in active membership even since October 12, 1866, when the first meeting was held.

In charge of the celebration of the anniversary is Capt. Newton Perree. He joined two months after the post was formed and has been an active worker ever since.

One of First Posts in U. S. John A. Rawlins Post is not only the father of all the Grand Army posts in the District, but was the second or third post formed in the entire United States. Captain Perree has written a history of the post which he will read at the meeting tonight.

The name of the post was authorized in 1869, the posts up to that time being designated only by numbers. In September, 1869, Gen. John A. Rawlins died. General Rawlins had been General Grant's chief of staff, and was at that time acting as Secretary of War. The post was named in honor of General Rawlins four days after his death. Of the original officers of the post, but one is living, (Gen. James T. Smith, who now makes his home in Lowell, Mass.

Original Officers of Post.

The original officers of the post were W. L. Bramhall, commander; Wilson Miller, assistant commander; S. E. Chamberlain, adjutant; James T. Smith, quartermaster, and Dr. D. S. Curtis, chaplain.

During the course of its organization the post has had a total of 1,165 members. The roll of honor, the members who have died, includes 282 names.

The celebration this evening will be entirely a post affair with the exception that Corporal James Tanner will make an address. The committee in charge, headed by Capt. Newton Perree, includes Alva S. Taber, Edward W. Whitaker, John H. D. Nordeman, James A. Allen, and Ruth W. Tuley.

Doctor Loses Two Fingers

Under X-ray; Is Decorated

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Dr. Menard, of the Cochin Hospital, was decorated with the Legion of Honor as a recompense for his loss of two fingers by exposure to the x-ray in hospital work.

Dr. Menard, who has lost a finger from each hand, has accomplished admirable results in the treatment of soldiers in the bodies of wounded soldiers. In the loss of his fingers he learned that tissue cells exposed to the action of the x-ray are subjected to a localized disease of nutrition, and, in consequence, harden and rapidly degenerate.

WASHINGTON FOLKS PRAISING REMEDY

E. M. Seaman, 717 Florida Ave.
N. E., Says Plant Juice Greatly Benefited Him.

One is not required to take Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, for weeks and months before he receives any benefit. In order that skeptical people may be convinced immediately, the formula is so constructed as to give almost instant relief, thereby giving the sufferer the necessary confidence. He will then continue the use of Plant Juice until he has fully recovered his health.

To those skeptical individuals, who want to be "shown," the following signed statement from Mr. E. M. Seaman, of No. 717 Florida Avenue N. E., will be of interest. Mr. Seaman is a well-known resident of this city, having many friends and acquaintances. He said:

"I have been troubled with my stomach for a very long time. My stomach was badly bloated with gas, and suffered agony after eating. I was nervous, could not sleep at night, was constipated, my liver and kidneys were affected, and I was completely run down, which was brought about by irregular eating habits, and the use of medicine, but got no permanent relief, and when I read so much about Plant Juice I decided to give it a trial. After taking it for several weeks, I have been completely cured, and I am feeling the best I have in years."

He has numerous symptoms of this trouble that Plant Juice can relieve. In fact any one of the following may denote affections of the stomach: Indigestion, dyspepsia, belching of wind, bad breath, sick, throbbing headaches, poor circulation, night sweats, that tired feeling, constipation, coated tongue, or a poor complexion.

Plant Juice is a vegetable remedy, extracted from the roots, herbs, barks, and berries of numerous medicinal plants. It is Nature's own remedy and works wonders. It gives almost immediate relief to practically every case where people suffer at above outlined. The Plant Juice man is at the People's Drug Store, corner of 7th and E streets, where he is daily meeting the local public, and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Adv.

Capt. Dollman Is Back From Mexican Border

Commander of District Field Hospital Corps Returns, Enthusiastic About Good Results Accomplished By Work.

Capt. Clarence M. Dollman, of the District Field Hospital Corps, has just arrived in Washington after three months of service with the District national guard on the Mexican border. Captain Dollman's organization is now at Douglas, Arizona, awaiting railroad transportation. They will return to the District as soon as the railroads can supply the cars.

Captain Dollman, bronzed by the outdoor life, enthusiastically tells of the good results which the work on the border has brought to the members of the field hospital unit.

"Every man is well, happy, and contented," said Captain Dollman, "and although they are all eager to get home, it is only because they know the work to which they were assigned has been completed, and the manner in which they did that work was a credit to themselves and the District. Our organization was encamped at Warren, Ariz., which is 4,000 feet above sea level.

"We looked after the health of the Twenty-second United States Infantry and acted as a field hospital to this organization. There were no serious sicknesses among the men in our charge, which shows the boys from the District were 'on the job' all the time."

The removal of the Twenty-second Infantry from Warren ended the work of the District hospital unit, and Dr. Dollman obtained leave to come to Washington ahead of the troops.

From a physician's point of view, Dr. Dollman stated, all sanitary conditions in every camp he saw on the border "were excellent."

"Of course, there have been some deaths among the troops now on the border," said Captain Dollman, "but they have not resulted from bad living conditions. The same number of deaths would occur anywhere among the same number of men."

Captain Dollman is very high in his praise of the men composing the District Field Hospital unit. These men are nearly all students in either the high schools or colleges in Washington. The desire to continue their studies upon their arrival in Washington is one of the factors which makes them want to get back.

"Life in our camp on the border was very little different from that in our camp near Fort Myer," said Dr. Dollman, "but, of course, there was 'more to it.' We were on a high plateau, and the desert in which we were camped extended away in every direction. It was as a floor, until it reached the mountain, which rose suddenly from the flat plain.

"There were no trees anywhere around. During the rainy season, it is true, there was a lot of fresh, green grass, spangled with every variety imaginable of wild flowers. But a week after the rainy season ended it looked as if a fire had swept the plains. Everything was charred and withered to the ground.

"The high altitude affected the men for the first few weeks, but after becoming acclimated, they enjoyed the sweet, rare air.

"The camp was as clean as a whistle. I have seen more dirt in many homes than I saw in the camp of the Twenty-second Infantry. As a consequence, there was practically no sickness—none of a serious nature.

"The boys in our outfit enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The only restriction being that one could not shoot more than forty at one time. 'Quail took the place of chicken,' for us, and we enjoyed it at nearly every meal.

"There is one thing about this border service which is certainly a great advantage. The men who have seen service there this summer are ready to go back at a moment's notice. The best thing about it is they are familiar with the climate, the country, and the people. I hope there will never be any necessity for fighting on the Mexican border, but if there is, there will be a fine lot of trained soldiers to do it."

"The men who were assigned to stay on the border, except the one instance, when the men of the field hospital crossed the border. 'One thing prevented them from being shot,' said Captain Dollman, "and that was because they were not armed. As it was, they walked into the Mexican trenches, were surrounded and arrested by a jabbering lot of soldiers, and when asked for an explanation they couldn't give it because they couldn't speak Spanish.

"Luckily a Mexican came along who acted as interpreter, and the men were taken to the United States side of the line and turned over to the authorities. They certainly had a narrow escape, I can tell you."
